Other notes (if applicable):

This project (Phases I and II combined) is exciting endeavor, which, if successful, will provide the UW with an additional opportunity for students to interact with a near pristine field site and at the same time contribute to the production of sustainable seafood for campus. The project is entirely student-conceived and led. The proposed Phase I project will provide the basis for assessing whether it is financially (and legally) possible to run a shellfish farm on a UW property. I support the project and look forward to seeing the report at the end of October.
